Old buildings at the top of the hill in Daly City are going down.

Redevelopment 'Event'

2 Vintage D.C. Buildings Felled

By NANCY STANCILL

"It was a real event at the top of the hill," said Don Ciucci.

Ciucci, Daly City's redevelopment staff planner, was one of about 50 persons who gathered at the top of Mission Street early Monday to witness the demolition of two vintage buildings.

The second stories of the two buildings, at 6278 and 6264 Mission Street, began to cave in to the wrecker's ball at about 7:30 a.m.

By day's end, the second stories of the old structures were packed into the first floors, "like garbage into a can," said Ciucci.

Universal Demolition, a South San Francisco firm, will continue its work with backloaders and bulldozers through Friday.

Daly City's Redevelopment Agency is paying Universal $14,982 to clear the 24,000 square-foot site for new development.

The agency purchased the property last year for $275,000 and paid another $40,000 to relocate the six businesses and three residential tenants which were using the structures.

According to Ciucci, it was a logical place to start redevelopment.

"It was the largest single piece of property available for purchase," he noted.

In addition, Ciucci pointed out, the two structures were beyond the point where rehabilitation would be economically feasible.

He said the buildings dated back to about 1914 and 1930. They had been in constant use, but had not been well maintained.

So the tenants, the last of whom moved out in May, were not moved to shed a tear for the decrepit structures.

When the demolition, originally scheduled for last week, was delayed, Ciucci gave an informal tour of the buildings to several interested persons.

The structures' well-worn facades gave clues to

Police Pact OKd; Lawsuit Threat

A divided Daly City City Council voted Monday to approve a seven-year service contract with the Broadmoor Police Protection District.

Opponents of the contract vowed to file suit as the council voted 3-2 to ratify the pact, which will provide the unincorporated area with protection through the Daly City Police Department.

Voting against the contract were councilmen Anthony Giammona and Victor Kyriakis.

Following the long meeting, attorney Wayne McFadden said he will file a suit in San Mateo Superior Court this week, asking that the contract not be instituted July 1, as the agreement specifics.

McFadden said the litigation will focus on what he called "illegal conduct of Broadmoor Police Commissioners John McCloskey and Dean Davenport," for commiting the district to a long-term contract extending past the two commissioners' terms of office.

The proposed suit also would mention the three Daly City councilmen who voted for the contract, McFadden said. The action will be filed on behalf of seven Broadmoor residents and two members of the Old Daly City Protective Association.

The Broadmoor Police Commission was expected to meet late today to approve the contract on a 2-1 vote.

About 100 persons, mostly Broadmoor residents, were on hand Monday for the Daly City council's special meeting on the contract.

City Manager David Rowe explained that the contract will not exceed $206,700 in 1977-78 costs, will not exceed $1.20 per $100 in assessed valuation for the contract's life, will provide for employment of all seven Broadmoor police employes and will include 24-hour protection of the Broadmoor area by at least one certificated officer.

Rowe also said that although the number of Broadmoor employes to be utilized in the police department has not yet been decided, a minimum of four probably will be so used. The others would be paid the same salary they now receive, but will be transferred to other city service areas.

JESD Sessions Proceed Orderly

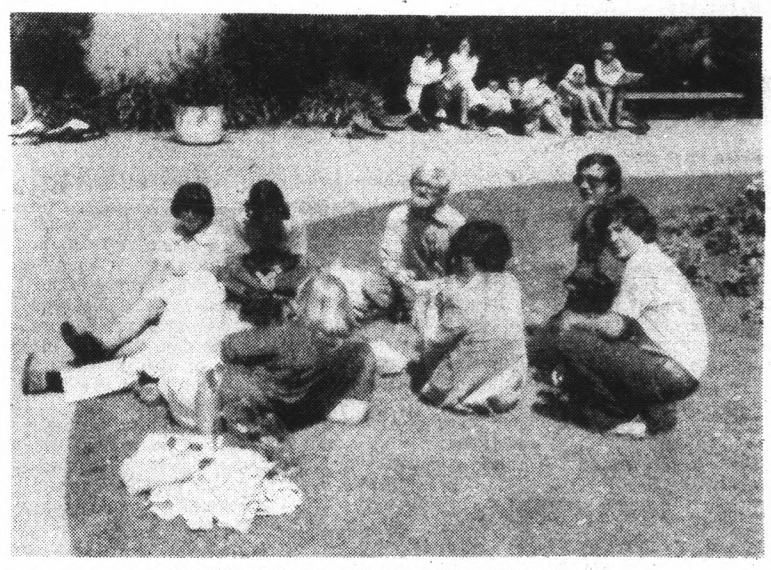
By BILL HURSCHMANN

Jefferson Elementary School District teachers generally were orderly Monday during their first day of in-service training, which teachers are attending despite repeated charges of illegality of the sessions.

At some schools, there were reports of teachers turning their backs on the in-service leaders. At Abraham Lincoln School, in-service teacher Ellen Haas left the school after 50 minutes of instruction. Ben Franklin School Principal Dick Connors said, "She asked to leave, saying she didn't feel like continuing."

The in-service training itself is a bone of contention in the embattled district. All 400 of the district's teachers are required to attend the training this week, one week after pupils were dismissed for summer vacation.



TEACHERS AT ABRAHAM LINCOLN ON BREAK DURING IN-SERVICE TRAINING

Teachers have long charged that having to work June 20-24 conflicts with summer plans, although all are attending because they believe the district would terminate their employment for absenteeism.

The district, however, contends the in-service

D.C. Budget Hacked

Daly City's City Council Saturday chopped 15 cents off the tax rate and $423,550 from the proposed $14.7 million city budget, restoring part of the Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce's threatened allocation and postponing the question of slashing new police personnel.

The three-hour budget study session began at 7:30 a.m. with the council hearing an upset delegation from the Chamber of Commerce.

The council in a budget session last week had taken under advisement a "shopping list" of recommendations by City Manager David Rose. The suggested cuts are an attempt to get the present tax rate of $1.99 per $100 of assessed valuation down to a target $1.50.

One of the less popular suggestions turned out to be a proposal to cut the chamber's requested $25,000 by $10,000.

Chamber President Charles Turner led a delegation of about 10 members to protest the cut.

"You're fighting the right war in the wrong place," Frank Spadarella, immediate past president of the chamber, told the council.

"We just don't operate on a dificit," Spadarella continued. "We don't have the reserves to go to."

He asked the council to reconsider some of the cuts to "vital services," such as the chamber and proposed police personnel.

"You can cut so close to the bone that you sever the main artery," Spadarella warned.

"We call it a shopping list," said Councilman McRobert Stewart of Rowe's budget cut proposal. "But it's really a death list."

The council suggested cutting the chamber allocation by $5,000 instead of $10,000.

The chamber representatives demurred, saying that they need $8,835 of the $10,000 just to break even.

Well, the council pondered, how about $5,000 and a CETA (federal Comprehensive Employe Training Act) employe?

It was decided that $5,000 and two CETA employes would be granted the chamber, through "the largesse of the federal government," as Mayor Albert Teglia put it.

The council decided to postpone until the upcoming Saturday budget session the question of cutting the eight new police employes proposed for budgeting in 1977-78.

Councilmen said they wanted to look at the outcome of the Broadmoor contract before they decide on the proposal that would

'Not Fully Read,' Superintendent Says

A representative of the State Teachers' Retirement System has refused to read all documents provided by the Jefferson Elementary School District regarding the job status of Marge Tobias, the district's superintendent has charged.

Supt. Pete Hansen, following a Sacramento meeting with representatives of the STRS, said Allan Brown of STRS" declared that while he had received the stack of documents purporting to support the district's case, he had not, nor did he intend to, read the contents of the entire packet."

The district has supplied STRS with an eight-inch-thick stack of documents which Hansen says supports the district's claim that Miss Tobias is an independent contractor.

Miss Tobias, a former JESD teacher and principal, has served the district as a consultant for the past two years. For her services, she receives $100 a day when working.

STRS, however, charges Miss Tobias has earned almost $20,000 from the district during those two years, and that she also has received her $19,000 a year full pension. STRS says state law allows a retired certificated employe only $3,000 a year income from a district while continuing to be eligible for a pension.

JESD claims Miss Tobias is an independent contractor and, as such, is entitled to both her pension and consultant fees.

Hansen also charged that Brown said "It was not his

Tax Rate Decline In JESD?

A $12 million budget which, if adopted, would result in a major decrease in the tax rate, was presented to trustees of the Jefferson Elementary School District Monday night.

However, pointed out Dr. John Trompeter, assistant superintendent for administrative services, "the overall tax rate will be less, even though the average taxpayer will be paying more money."

Trompeter said a major increase in assessed valuation makes available a "significant decrease in the school tax rate." Trompe-

Firm Looks at Rates, D.C. Eyes TV Failures

Vista Grande Cablevision representatives and Daly City's Council appeared to be talking about two different things Monday night.

The City Council talked about Vista Grande's failure to reach agreement with the city on increased performance requirements to be included in the franchise ordinance.

Vista Grande attorney Harold Farrow talked mainly about the cablevision company's need for a rate increase.

The result appeared to be a widening of the breach of communications, which each side conceded has existed between the city and firm for the past six months.

City Atty. Albert Polonsky pointed out that the city has attempted to get agreement on the proposed franchise changes since December. In addition, he said, problems have existed in cablevision service for several years.

He urged that the council to permit him to go ahead and introduce additions to the franchise ordinance for adoption within a month.

The council agreed to the consideration of Polonsky's proposals to increase Vista Grande's liability insurance from $50,000 to $100,000, to require the firm to restore malfunctioning service within 36 hours, barring strikes and acts of God, and to improve signal quality.

Other proposals that the council is expected to adopt involve compliance with Federal Communication Commission standards, filing of all reports with the city and a procedure for payment of audits.

Polonsky requested that the council take note that the Vista Grande representative walked out as the council began its considera-

DC Woman Charged: $41,000 Welfare Fraud

A 36-year-old Daly City woman who allegedly has obtained more than $41,000 in illegal welfare benefits during the past 11 years was arraigned on eight charges Friday in Superior Court at Redwood City.

The arraignment before Judge Alan Haverty was on a county Grand Jury indictment returned Thursday night charging Joann Smith, 62 Bellevue Ave., mother of four children between the ages of 8 and 18, with three counts of welfare fraud, one count of food stamp fraud and four counts of perjury.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Poling said that Mrs. Smith has been employed full time as a clerk for Pacific Telephone in San Francisco since 1970 and currently has net take-home pay of more than $700 a month.

Poling related that Mrs. Smith used her own name and a fictitious name of Janette Allen in applying for welfare and food stamp benefits.

The perjury charges stem from her statements on forms submitted in support of her benefit eligibility status, he said.

Poling reported that an investigation began after an eligibility worker for the Department of Health and Welfare noted a similarity in the unusual first name of one of the Smith children given by Mrs. Smith under both the Smith and Allen names.

The case, Poling said, is one of the largest in "many years" in San Mateo County. He said that a total of 14 witnesses testified before the Grand Jury.

Mrs. Smith was arraigned after surrendering to the court. Judge Haverty released her without bail, granting a one-week continuance to 9 a.m. Friday, June 24, in order to allow her to confer with court-appointed counsel.

cut at least $110,000 from the budget.

Residents Ernie Pezzola and Conrad Pavellas reminded the council that Police Chief David Hansen has asked that 17 new police positions be budgeted to keep up with the rising crime rate.

"We are facing an enemy and this enemy has to have an army built up," said Pavellas.

The council ended up slicing the membership, dues and publications, travel and meetings and education and training budgets for all city departments.

In addition, the council decided to cut a number of vacant positions that would have been funded, including an animal control officer, a civil engineer, street sweeper operator, two utility workers, an electrician trainee, two library personnel and several clerk typists.

Other economies council agreed to included cuts in the affirmative action program, drastically reducing funding for the proposed History, Arts and Science Commission, reducing the scope of awards dinners and wiping out the tree spraying budget.

The council also appeared to approve in theory a proposal to consolidate the public works and community development departments.

Rowe's proposal requested that the city department staffs make recommendations on integrating the areas within 90 days, with reorganization proposed in phases by January, 1977.

One cut the council declined to make was a proposed $800 expenditure for Christmas decorations in city buildings.

"I think we're going to have to leave that in," Mayor Pro Tem William Schumacher commented.

"I don't want to be accused of being a Scrooge," Councilman Anthony Giammona agreed.

tion of the franchise additions.

Earlier in the special session, Farrow had objected to the council's consideration of Polonsky's recommendations before Vista Grande's consultant presents its findings in regard to a rate increase.

"It's inappropriate to proceed while this process is incomplete," said Farrow of the consultant's report.

Farrow said of Polonsky's recommendations, "Many of them we are unalterably opposed to, several can be worked out and others make no difference."

The attorney continued to point out that Vista Grande has lost "a half-million dollars" in a year and cannot continue to hold back on a rate increase.

Councilman Victor Kyriakis remarked that he had first heard of a rate increase request about two weeks ago, "almost as an afterthought."

Mayor pro tem William Schumacher agreed with Kyriakis.

"I kind of resent Mr. Farrow's approach," said Schumacher. "He's combining a rate increase with performance requirements. They are totally independent subjects."

"One can't divorce performance from the price," Farrow remarked.

The council will continue action on the Vista Grande proposals at the next regular meeting in July.

Contract

will replace a temporary service contract between the two jurisdictions which began Jan. 1 and is to expire June 30.

The city manager noted that a proposal by Kyriakis to offer the district a cancellation clause extending one year after the November elections was not feasible.

He pointed out that if a newly-elected Police Commission rejected the contract, Daly City still would have the responsibility of the Broadmoor employes without the district's financial support of them.

Kyriakis' motion died for lack of a second.

"I feel like the parent at a shotgun wedding, but I think this contract is best for both Daly City and Broadmoor," said Mayor Pro Tem William Schumacher.

Opponents and proponents of the contract paraded before the council in alternate style, as Mayor Albert Teglia called for first a "for" then for an "against" witness. Applause for both sides appeared about even.

Al Nickas, a Broadmoor policeman, said he favored the contract because "my main concern is my security — for my job and for my property. Protection has increased 100 per cent with the arrangement with the Daly City Police Department."

McCloskey, chairman of the Police Commission, asked that the council consider the contract "on the merits of the issue.

"Whether you have 100,000 letters for or against the proposal, it cannot be decided that way," McCloskey argued.

Earlier, Rowe had reported a petition of 241 Broadmoor residents favoring the contract, as well as 151 letters asking for its ratification. He said, however, there was some overlap.

The council objected to the fact that a petition purporting to contain 857 signatures against the proposal had not been submitted in advance for verification of names.

Speakers against the contract included Broadmoor Police Commissioner Wayne Johnson, who said the proposal was "a farce and a sham on both Broadmoor and Daly City taxpayers."

Johnson said he had offered the two other commissioners an alternative to the Daly City arrangement in a liability insurance proposal which would allow maintenance of the independent police department.

But Davenport said the $24,500 insurance offer did not include the name of the broker or other pertinent facts needed for such an investment.

Original Daly City Protective Association members Conrad Pavellas and Ernie Pezzola, the only two Daly City residents to speak on the matter, said ODCPA opposed the contract.

They said the contract's approval might reinforce a bad image of Daly City by Broadmoor residents.

"Daly City in the past has gained the appearance of an aggressive and territory-hungry city that is bent on aggrandizement at the expense of weaker neighbors," stated the ODCPA resolution they presented.

ter promised an estimate later.

Assessed valuation in the Jefferson district increased from $193.1 million for 1976-77 to $265.7 million for 1977-78.

"The financial status of the district remains extremely critical," Trompeter told trustees. To provide a balanced budget, he said, "we have made all reasonable cuts. There are, however, other cuts that could be made, but they aren't substantial ones . . . a couple of hundred dollars here, a couple of hundred there."

All employes paid through federal funds were not included in the 1977-78 budget, Trompeter added.

The condition in the district is severe, the assistant superintendent said, because student enrollment continues to decline. Average daily attendance in JESD for 1976-77 was 7,987. Trompeter expected that to drop by more than 300 students for 1977-78.

Another factor is the district's 50 per cent reduction in Emergency School Aid Act funds. For 1977-78, the district expects to receive $428,303, only half of last year's allotment.

Because of contractural situations, JESD will be forced to continue the contracts of seven teachers (out of a certificated ESAA staff of 31 this year(, at an additional cost of approximately $150,000. Twenty-six classified ESAA employes can be terminated without district obligation, trustee Dorothy Adams said.

Also, Trompeter said, state laws requiring districts to provide bilingual education may necessitate the hiring of six additional teachers not included in his proposed budget.

Also, Trompeter urged that the district's contingency fund be raised from the estimated $10,310 to at least $300,000 by the time the final budget is adopted Aug. 3.

By far the largest chunk of the proposed budget is for certificated salaries ($6.7 million), followed by classified salaries ($1.5 million), employe benefits ($1.4 million) and contracted service ($1 million).

Trompeter cautioned trustees that they might look to the closing of two schools in the district. "The possibility of eliminating two schools should be looked at. I believe we could operate more efficiently this way." Trustees did not discuss this matter further.

Trompeter said his immediate concern is to balance the budget. "I'll need to come up with, by next Monday, a better balanced budget," he promised the board.

JESD trustees again will discuss the budget at their regular meeting June 27.

the businesses they once contained.

"Contact Lenses" . . . "Don's Bargain Spot" . . . "Callison Moving and Storage" . . . "Mission Bell Motel — 1914" were some of the legends displayed.

Inside, the dark areas were grimy and cluttered, with trash and litter from former tenants strewn in the shabby rooms.

In the economy apartments in the second story of one building, old mattresses and stoves mingled with articles of clothing.

Ciucci opened a refrigerator to reveal empty beer cans and other garbage. He picked up a telephone instrument to return to the telephone company.

The redevelopment staff planner noted that the buildings had been baited and fumigated to protect nearby merchants.

He pointed out that before the days of strict building codes and inspections, additions had been constructed by simply tacking on another wall when the owner felt like it. The buildings' plumbing was exposed at the rear of the structures.

The tour revealed an upstairs ballroom, complete with an elaborate orchestra pit. It appeared to date back to the World War II era, when Daly City soldiers soon to ship out to battle must have enjoyed a few last carefree nights.

"If you close your eyes, you can almost see it," said Ciucci.

But Ciucci emphasized that most area business people and residents are looking forward to new development of the site.

Its interim use will be for parking, until a suitable developer is found. Ciucci said there has been an inquiry about the property and he expects more interest to be expressed in the near future.

What does he visualize for the site?

"I see a building with four to seven stories, perhaps a blend of retail, office and residential development," he said.

responsibility to build the district's case. He (Brown) further said he made his decision a month ago and he did not believe our documentation contained the data he wanted. Therefore, he was recommending the matter go to an administrative hearing."

The superintendent also said STRS legal advisor Nancy Dolder "concurred with Brown's recommendation, although she admitted she had been too busy with her board meetings to review the documents and was relying on Brown's evaluation of those documents."

Last month, the STRS had asked the district to provide more information about Miss Tobias' duties.

At that time, Leighton Case, assistant chief executive officer for STRS, said, "if their material supports the independent theory, we'll drop the issue. If not, we'll go to a hearing."

At the conclusion of the meeting, the district agreed to send to Sacramento copies of the job descriptions for the positions of assistant superintendent of educational services and building principal.

Hansen said legal advisor Dolder "assured the group she would attempt to study the documentation supplied by the district and get back to us this week."

STRS representative Brown could not be reached for comment.

Teaching Formula Improves Reading

Five experimental reading programs funded by the California State Department of Education have reported success using a highly structured formula of step-by-step teaching.

Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, said the results show the advantages of dividing reading instruction into many small steps, then teaching directly to a child's main reading problem until it is solved.

Most of the 17,150 children taking part in the program in five Southern California school districts progressed in reading proficiency faster than the average pupil, some at exceptionally high rates.

In one district, Riles said, junior and senior high students who had been having difficulties learned at more than 2.5 times normal achievement rates.

The programs were funded for three years in the Santa Ana, Garden Grove, Los Angeles, Vista and Mojave unified school districts through Title III of the federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

The main elements of the programs' success were found to be:

- Teacher re-training, including ways of discovering exact pupil reading problems and immediate ways of curing them.
- Short, direct reading lessons devoted to a single skill.
- Immediate testing to see whether the child absorbed the lesson.
- Less emphasis on direct teaching and textbook materials and more on the teacher as a manager of pupils' independent study.
- Telling children about their reading strengths and weaknesses and letting them help manage their own progress.
- Parents teaching some elements of reading at home.
- Additional money from the state to pay for classroom aides, expert assistance and re-training.

training, designed to better prepare teachers for next fall, was part of the school calendar approved June 30, 1976.

Workshops are being conducted at nine schools each day this week, with teachers divided into groups based on the schools in which they teach.

Garry Beiringer, president of the Jefferson Classroom Teachers Association, said teachers were "tired, exhausted, insulted or simply not motivated to participate in the workshops."

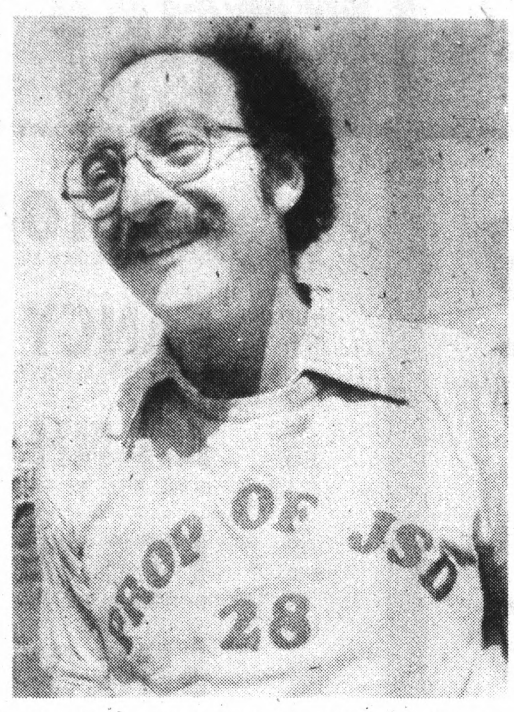
JESD teachers claim the workshops are illegal, although the courts Friday turned down a request for an injunction to halt the training. California's Educational Employment Relations Board also had decided not to seek an injunction on behalf of the teachers.

In many of the schools, prior to the beginning of Monday morning's session, teacher representatives read prepared statements to workshop leaders indicating they were in attendance "under protest. We consider these five days of workshops illegally imposed. . . . Your presence here goes completely against the desires, interests and motivations of the teachers here today. We request that you terminate your services in conducting this workshop."

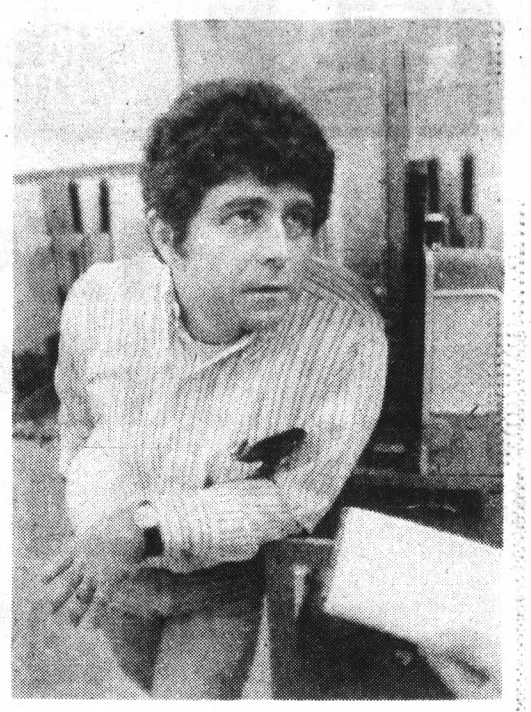
At one school, Colma Elementary, Supt. Pete Hansen refused to allow the statement to be read.

A number of Daly City parents were on hand at Monday night's board of trustees meeting to present board members with petitions protesting the in-service training week expenditure, which is costing the district approximately $13,000.

Pinkie Nichols, Daly City, said she asked the board to speak on the petitions, but her request was denied. "I'm dumbfounded," she said.



GARRY BIERINGER . . . JCTA president



JON BARKHURST . . . in-service instructor

The Daniel Webster School in-service teacher, Jon Barkhurst, said about the teachers, "Considering everything, they've been a very polite group. However, being here really puts me in an awkward position. I'm trying to work on creativity of children, and that takes some excitement on behalf of the teachers.

"The situation here today doesn't encourage participation," said the former JESD teacher and now full-time in-service instructor. "This could have been valuable if it were held at the beginning of the school year."

service training with teachers.

Ten minutes later, Supt. Pete Hansen issued a district-wide bulletin to all principals mandating press access to the in-service workshops being held at nine schools.

The newsmen visited two other JESD schools prior to their arrival at Lincoln, without incident.

At Lincoln, in-service teacher Ellen Haas had departed after 50 minutes of instruction.

When asked what occurred during the balance of the morning session, Connors replied, "I don't feel that is any of your business. And I don't want any of this material used in the newspaper."

Connors also complained about the photographer. "I don't like you coming in and shooting pictures like you did. I'll ask you not to run that picture," he said.

One teacher did ask the photograph not appear in the newspaper. There were no other such requests from teachers.

Stamp Design Contest

California wildlife artists are invited to enter their original watefowl designs in the state's first duck stamp art contest.

The winning design, to be selected by the California Fish and Game Commission, will be used on the duck stamp for the 1978-1979 waterfowl hunting season. Once the stamp is issued, the winning artist is free to use the design as he or she wishes.

Entries must be at the Department of Fish and Game headquarters office, 1416 Ninth St., Sacramento 95814, by 5 p.m. Jan. 15, 1978 to be eligible. Rules of the contest and design specifications are available by writing to California Duck STamp Art Contest at that address.

Fair Deadline

Entries for the Senior Home Arts Division at the San Mateo County Fair & Floral Fiesta are due June 27.

Exhibits considered in the Senior Home Arts Center will be arts and crafts, baked goods, clothing and textiles and preserved foods. Judging, based on appearance and quality or taste, will take place at the fair, July 25-Aug. 6. Cash prizes, trophies and ribbons will be awarded to individuals and organizations.

Entry information is available from the Fair Administration Offices, 2495 S. Delaware, San Mateo.

IRA Booklets

Employes who are not covered by a pension or retirement plan where they work can get a free booklet from the Internal Revenue Service outlining how to set up an Individual Retirement Arrangement (IRA).

IRS Publication 590, "Tax Information on Individual Retirement Savings Programs," explains in simple language how qualified individuals can set up their own retirement plan and get a tax break at the same time.

Funding Depends On Colma Agreement

By NANCY STANCILL

The North San Mateo County Sanitation District is hoping its reclaimed water project won't go down the drain.

The project, which would recycle sewage water for irrigation use in green belt areas, is in some danger of being bypassed for federal and state funds, according to David Gehre, NSMCSD manager.

Unless the district can reach an agreement with Colma's major cemeteries within the next three or four weeks, Gehre said, about $2 million in funding will go to other areas of the state.

Gehre said the necessary agreements have been obtained for funding for the first phase of the project — a $500,000 reservoir facility at the Olympic Golf Club in the Westlake area.

The reservoir will hold sewer water which has been given secondary treatment at the nearby NSMCSD plant and piped for use by the Olympic Club, Westlake Park, San Francisco Golf and Country Club, CalTrans and possibly several Broadmoor area schools.

The second phase, a larger undertaking which will cost about $2.7 million and provide reclaimed water to most Colma cemeteries, has been stalled.

Gehre said the proposed system's major users, Cypress Lawn, Olivet and Holy Cross cemeteries, have not signed an agreement that they will use the water.

The agreement has to be included in a state facilities plan for the 87½ per cent state and federal funding to be approved by the state Water Resources Control Board.

"If you try to give people something, they are skeptical," said Gehre, who has been talking with cemetery representatives for four months.

Once the major users have signed an agreement, the NSMCSD can talk with the smaller users, which Gehre said would include the smaller cemeteries, nearby flower growers and CalTrans again for road medians.

The cemeteries currently are using water from wells located on their properties. The well water is pumped from the aquifer which extends from Golden Gate Park to San Bruno.

Experts have pointed out, however, that the aquifer is being pumped faster than the ground water can be replenished. Daly City alone gets about 75 per cent of its current water supply from the aquifer.

"I see it as wasting three and a half to four million gallons of drinking water a day," Gehre said of the cemeteries' well water use.

"You look at the Colma area and there's a huge green belt of cemeteries and golf courses," Gehre said, shaking his head.

At the sanitation district's urging, Assemblyman Louis Papan has introduced a bill now awaiting passage which will require use of reclaimed water for green belt irrigation, "including but not limited to cemeteries, golf courses, parks and urban areas," provided that it can be delivered at the same or less cost than present water sources.

Gehre said the reclaimed water is not exactly "something for nothing," but at $150 per million gallons for the Colma project, it's six times less expensive than San Francisco water would be. He said the cost is close to or less than electricity and maintenance on water pumping equipment.

Wallace Honeywell, manager of Olivet Cemetery, said the cost of reclaimed water would be close to the same cost of using well water.

But he conceded that he is concerned about the quality of the reclaimed water and about who is liable if someone accidentally drinks it, for instance.

Honeywell, the only one of the three cemetery managers who could be reached for comment, said other concerns include restrictions on how the water can be used. It can't be used to flood an area, for instance, but must be spread fairly evenly over the ground.

BART Adjusts Hours For Late-Night Patrons

BART has adjusted its last-train schedules to insure that patrons who enter any one of the system's 34 stations before midnight will be assured of catching a train.

The new schedule will also insure patrons of connecting trains if transferring is required to reach their destination station.

All stations will uniformly close down their entry gates at 12 midnight. Prior scheduling called for the last trains to leave end-of-line terminals at varying times ranging from 10:50 p.m., to 12:20 a.m. Last trains will now rendezvous at MacArthur Station for final transfer of passengers. Transfers may also be made at the 12th and 19th Street stations in downtown Oakland.

"We believe this new schedule will be much more convenient for late night BART travelers than the old schedule," said BART's Director of Field Services Bill Fleisher.

He noted that some flexibility has been built into the new schedule in that a patron who comes to a BART station after midnight where the last train has not yet passed through will be able to enter.

BART's late night schedule calls for trains to operate at 20-minute intervals, offering direct service between Concord/Daly City and Richmond/Fremont.

Agency on Aging Studying Spanish

The San Mateo County Area Agency on Aging is conducting a one-year study of social services and the Spanish-speaking senior citizen.

The study will examine the existing system and determing gaps and barriers in the delivery of services.

The project will be conducted in coordination with an advisory committee to consist of Spanish-speaking seniors and knowledgeable agency representatives.

The Area Agency on Aging hopes to recruit members for this committee from the various geographical locations in the county. Those who wish to participate or who have questions regarding this project can call Martha Escobedo in the North County at 994-3030.

Americans to Host Exchange Students

More than 3,400 youths aged 14 to 18 years old will arrive in the United States this year from 24 countries in Europe, South America and the Far East under the Youth for Understanding exchange program.

The non-profit organization is searching for qualified families who wish to share their homes with an exchange student for six months or a year.

Host families provide room and board for the student, making him or her a part of their family and daily lives. Program fees and the student's natural family take care of medical insurance, clothing expenses and spending money.

For further information about the program, contact Mr. and Mrs. Robert Glennon at 418 Valverde Drive, South San Francisco 94080; telephone 588-5913.

What's new?

For people who like stories, there's a new novel that begins "1906-1913 - Nothing very new in the great world. Like all the centuries and the millennia that have preceded it on earth, the new century also observes the well known immobile principle of historical dynamics: power to some, servitude to others."

Elsa Morante calls her novel of modern Italy "History: A Novel." Therein she presents the "bloodied" life experienced by the poorly educated, faceless people who lived at the edge of the ghettos of Italy during the present century. Against a background of two world wars and fascism, Morante's characters meet prejudice, cruelty, resistance, hunger, thievery, prostitution and death.

THE STORY TELLS of Ida Mancuso, nee Ramundo, a desperately poor, ill-educated schoolteacher who is raped by a German soldier of World War I and left to raise two boys; one partly Jewish, the other partly German.

As the boys grow up, Nino becomes uncontrollable, charming and greedy for life. He flirts with fascism, the black market, and gun running. Useppe becomes a "curiously vulnerable child, enchanting the world around him, enchanted by it, yet oddly aware that he is doomed."

"History: A Novel" is a story of tragedies of the 20th century with its share of atrocities and its brutal wars. It has been called "the most exciting novel to come out of Italy since World War II."

FOR NON-FICTION READERS, "Woodswoman," by Anne La Bastille (Dutton, $10.95) is new. Here is the story of a young ecologist with a Ph.D. who fled to the Northwoods to overcome the effects of her divorce. a gleeful pioneer child hearing the thump as each new lake. Then, with the help of two "sturdy, taciturn carpenters," she constructed a cabin of rough logs complemented by a floor, a roof, windows and door frames of regular store-bought lumber.

As her cabin rose, she felt a crowd of human emotions. "I felt like a stubborn pioneer woman swinging her axe. I felt like a resourceful pioneer man guiding each log into place with a peavey (a wooden pole with metal tip and hinged hook for handling logs). I felt like agleeful pioneer child hearing the thump as each new notched log slipped over the lower . . . an enormous pride grew in me as I fashioned my own home on land never before occupied in the history of red or white men."

LIFE FOR ANNE LaBASTILLE in her cabin ran from abject loneliness to friendship with her dog and with other animals. She worked and worked to make her 22 acres a pleasant home, but she also hiked over mountains and through forests and swam in cold, clear waters. At one time she saved a man from death who had cut an artery in his leg. Another time she and a girl friend from Boston faced death as a heavy log truck raced toward their fragile snowmobile. She fished. She visited with mountain men, hunters and guides. Sometimes she entertained her city friends in her wilderness home.

At the end of ther book, Dr. La Bastille writes, "Drifting about under the night heavens, I think and hope that I can weather the storms which will blow my way — and that these trials will give me depth and stature so that in old age I can be like my big, white pines — dignified, lending beauty to the surroundings, and lifting their heads with strength and serenity to both sun and storms, snowflakes and swallows."

GIRL SCOUTING

SIERRA CAMP openings are available for Daly City-Colma area Girl Scouts and non-Scouts according to Camp Director Carole Ann Scott.

The Camp Sugar Pine (near Calaveras Big Trees) experience is set for July 10-15, and costs $54 including all bus transportation.

"All units will participate in hiking, crafts, conservation, folk dancing, swimming and swim lessons, star gazing and special events such as cook-out lunches, creek hikes with picnic lunches, all-camp pool Olympics, a sleep-in breakfast and an all-camp picnic with games chosen by the campers," according to Mrs. Scott.

Requirements for badges in cooking, swimming, the art of prints, hiking, etc. can be signed off as a result of this six-day camp in the Sierra. Interested girls and adults may contact Mrs. Scott at 755-1090 or Donna Barnes, 756-1639 for more details.

CAMP IDA SMITH will be the new site for the Daly City Area Association Day Camp set for Aug. 8-12, according to Director Joan Stewart. Camp fee is $8 covering milk, most food, insurance and program supplies and can be mailed to Shirley Figone, 327 Higate, Daly City, 94015.

"A TASTE OF MEDICINE," a national Girl Scout opportunity is the destination this week for two local senior Girl Scouts. The encampment is scheduled through July 1 at the College of St. Mary's in Omaha, Neb.

Camp theme is to observe, tour and learn about medical careers and the local girls were chosen from national applications to be one of the 150 attendees.

Cheryl Figone, a senior at Westmoor and a Daly City Brownie leader, plans a career in nursing and will attend the event "because this opportunity lies where my interest of my future is."

Seona Connolly, a junior at Mercy High and a member of Mariner Troop '13, "has always been interested in medicine" and hopes that a possible future career may be opened for her.

Girls had to be between the ages of 15 and 18, have a special interest in medically related careers, and references were required.

Miss Connolly has worked as a receptionist helping patients in the office of her father, Daly City podiatrist Dr. John M. Connolly, and is interested in a career in medical research.

Man Held In Daly City Murder

A man suspected in the Feb. 5 robbery and murder at the Westlake Pizza Shop in Daly City was arrested in Sacramento, Daly City police announced.

James F. Pifer, 29, no known address, is being held in the Sacramento County Jail, according to Daly City police who were expected to pick him up Tuesday.

He is charged with robbery and first degree murder.

On Feb. 5, a lone gunman held up the Pizza Shop and murdered a customer, Francis Sperisen, 49, of Daly City, when he resisted the robbery.

Fingerprints were left at the scene, Daly City police said. With those prints and a composite drawing made from an employe's description, police linked the evidence and finally came up with a name, the police said.

Pifer is described as a transient, also wanted by Sacramento police, the Sacramento Sheriff's Office, Yuba City police and San Francisco police on a variety of charges.

He was arrested by California Highway patrolmen in Sacramento Friday in a reportedly stolen vehicle.

1977-78 Civil Grand Jury Panel Nominated

Thirty persons have been nominated to serve on the 1977-78 San Mateo County Grand Jury, which for the first time in history will not concern itself with criminal matters.

The 19-member panel will be chosen by lot July 12 in the courtroom of Superior Court Judge Thomas M. Jenkins, who will preside over the grand jury.

A recently enacted law enables the county to impanel a grand jury for criminal purposes in the same manner in which juries are selected. Names will be gathered from voting lists and licensed drivers.

The nominees for the grand jury, however, are made by judges.

The grand jury will focus entirely on civil and governmental issues.

The nominees, their occupations and hometowns are:

Yvonne E. Abramson, a former nurse, Atherton; Marianne K. Arnstein, housewife, Atherton; Ralph E. Boynton, executive consultant, Menlo Park; Ronald L. Carr, account manager, South San Francisco; Sabra Carrera, housewife, Daly City; Mrs. Lucille M. Creamer, savings and loan officer, South San Francisco.

Restricted Smoking Bill to Assembly

State Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo County, won a significant victory Thursday when the Senate narrowly approved by a 21-15 vote his bill to ban or restrict smoking in virtually all buildings open to the public.

The measure (SB 500) now goes to the Assembly.

Under the bill, smoking would be allowed only in specified areas in a number of publicly and privately owned buildings, including theaters, libraries, hotels, stores and some health facilities.

The legislation would restrict smoking to specified areas in places of employment, restaurants and bars.

The provisions of the bill would remain in effect unless local governments enact stronger or weaker ordinances.

Gregorio and supporters of the measure contend it will help to protect nonsmokers from the health problems caused by breathing cigarette, cigar or pipe smoke.

"Smoking is a very serious health problem in California," Gregorio said, "and it's expensive for taxpayers in terms of public health programs."

On the other hand, critics of the bill contend it is taking government regulations a step too far.

Sen. David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, argued that the bill was encroaching upon personal liberties.

"I think that the state can go a little too far in the types of habits we proscribe," he said. "Once the state involves itself in the habits of living, liberties will be curbed.

"Everyone needs a nervous habit. If you don't die from smoking, you could die from overeating. You can't abolish annoyances or obnoxious habits."

However, Sen. Bob Wilson, D- La Mesa, said abolition of annoyances is not the issue.

"We're not talking about an inconvenience or annoyance," he said. "We're talking about a habit that kills people.

"The surgeon general didn't say smoking was an annoyance. He said it causes lung cancer and is associated with heart disease."

Senior Lunches

- Martin Luther King Recreation Center, 725 Monte Diablo, San Mateo.

- St. Paul's United Methodist Church, 500 Miller Ave., South San Francisco.

Here is the menu for the week of June 20 to 24:

TUESDAY — Grapefruit juice, spaghetti, peas, salad, french bread, fruit cocktail.

WEDNESDAY — Fried chicken, spinach, beets, potato, banana cake.

THURSDAY — Fish filet, corn, salad, potato, peaches.

FRIDAY — Roast beef, carrots, coleslaw, potato, jello, pears.

All meals are served with milk and a choice of tea or coffee.

Firemen Rescue Boy in Tree

An eight-year-old El Granada boy got his leg stuck in a tree Thursday and had to be rescued by San Bruno firemen.

Robbie Alves, 8, of 623 Fernenan Drive, was climbing a tree on the 600 block of Linden Avenue when his right knee became stuck in the tree limbs.

Firemen used a piece of rescue equipment primarily used to open vehicle doors to spread the limbs apart and release the youth.

Robbie was uninjured, and was released to his father who was attending a meeting in San Bruno.

Le Pacini

Have you, too, lost all personal respect for those professional athletes who willingly sign contracts and who then want to "re-negotiate" (i.e., break) them when they suddenly decide that they made themselves an open-eyed bad deal, or were out-smarted, or want to buy a more expensive house, or are jealous that somebody else made a better deal than they were able to get?

Give credit to Baltimore's Hall of Fame bound pitcher Jim Palmer, who may more than any player in baseball other than Pete Rose deserve multi-millions, but who instead has signed for what is a relatively modest figure.

But Palmer has class and common sense, and says that 1) he does'nt care about what other guys are making as long as he's satisfied with what he's making and 2) he doesn't want to price himself or the owners out of the game. Palmer, in the long run, will be better off than all of the others who are trying to fleece owners, because the owners — who still and will forever control baseball — wil remember his reason and responsibility, and repay him for it for years and years, in many ways.

INTERESTING to note how generally poorly the clubs who spent the big money on free agents are doing at the gate thus far this year.

In the American League, the Angels are third in attendance, followed by the Yankees, fifth; Milwaukee, seventh; Texas, eighth; and Cleveland, thirteenth.

San Diego ranks third in National League attendance, but Atlanta is only seventh, while Montreal is twelfth.

IF THE STATE of professional boxing has you confused, don't feel guilty. There are currently three major boxing organizations ranking fighters, the WBA (World Boxing Association), WBC (World Boxing Council), and the NABF (North American Boxing Federation). Among them, they list 24 champions in nine weight divisions.

There are three different champs listed in six of the divisions (in the featherweight division only two are listed, but the NABF has the title vacant), and in not one of the divisions is there a unanimous choice.

BASEBALL TRIVIA: For what it's worth, this year's free agent draft was the largest in five years, as 832 players were picked. That was the most since 1972, when 849 were selected.

The first death benefits of the player pension plan were paid to Mrs. Ernie Bonham, widow of the Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher, who died at only 36 a week after abdominal surgery.

The San Francisco Seals once used uniforms with the name "Dons" inscribed across the front shirt.

Now, are you ready for our semi-annual Baseball Bar Quiz?. Guaranteed, if you memorize the answers, to get you stinking drunk, free.

1) Q. What big league pitcher struck out 325 batters and didn't lead the majors in K's?

A. Sam McDowell, who did if for Cleveland in 1965, the year that Sandy Koufax struck out 382 in the National League.

2) Q. Who was the first big league manager to be a former college baseball coach?

A. Jack Slattery, who was signed out of Boston College to manage the Braves in 1928.

3) Q. Who hit the first homerun under the lights?

A. Babe Herman, the legendary Brooklyn baserunner, who hit one against Cleveland, the first club in the bigs to install lights, in 1935.

4) Q. Why is the pitcher's mound the odd 60 feet, 6 inches from the batter's box?

A. The original intended distance was to be the even 60 feet. But a surveyor, handed the new specifications, took the "60 feet, 0 inches" to be 60 feet, 6 inches, and so laid out the new infield accordingly. By the time the error was discovered, it would have been too costly and time-consuming to change everything back to the original blue-print. It's interesting to speculate how much that extra six inches has possibly meant to baseball history. Also interesting that 60 feet, 6 inches, is now considered to be just right.

5) Q. What team holds the record for most runs scored in the ninth inning?

A. The Giants, who scored 12 runs against the Reds on August 23, 1961. The five homeruns the Giants hit that inning equaled a major league mark. The Giants won, 14-0.

6) Q. With what team was New York Met and USC great Tom Seaver originally under contract?

A. It was the Braves. But Seaver was declared a free agent after the Braves were found guilty of signing him to a pro contract following the start of the Trojan season.

7) Q. What rookie once shut out the Dodgers five consecutive times during their mid-sixties heydays?

A. That was a St. Louis southpaw named Larry Jaster, then only 22. He did it in 1966. Jaster was gone from the majors at age 28 (1972), after compiling a lifetime record of only 35-33 with a 3.65 ERA. Jaster appeared in two World Series games and had an ERA of 81.0 in one-third of an inning.

8) Q. What player was the first to name his dark brown bat a "Black Betsy"?

A. There is a controversy over that one. Some say it was the infamous though great Chicago "Black" Sox outfielder "Shoeless" Joe Jackson. Others claim it was Cleveland Hall of Fame shortstop Joe Sewell. You might be able to win the bet by asking if it was a left-handed hitter who named the bat, or a right-handed hitter. At least that way you'll have a 50-50 chance of winning if the other guy answers, "righty," because both Jackson and Sewell were southpaw swingers.

Well, actually, I don't know if they swung, but they did hit south-paw. I personally have to go along with the theory that it was Jackson, because he broke in to the big leagues 12 years before Sewell. In fact, the year Jackson was kicked out of baseball — 1920 — was the year that Sewell was a rookie. Which may be too much of a coincidence to overlook. I think that maybe Sewell was being a copy-cat when he named his bat "Black Betsy."

Taking Mystery Out of Scoring in Bowling

By TERRY DAVENPORT

Bowling is losing its mystique.

You still have to wear special shoes and go through the ritual of selecting the proper bowling ball, but a new machine has taken the mystery out of the complicated scoring.

Bowling alleys throughout the Peninsula are installing scoring machines which automatically chalk up your score as you topple the pins.

"Roughly 50 per cent of my business has been new business since I installed automatic scorers," reports Herm Tamraz, manager of Sea Bowl in Pacifica.

Before Tamraz installed the machines last December, 19th Avenue Bowl in San Mateo was the only local alley with automatic scorers. Serra Bowl in Daly City acquired them a month after Sea Bowl.

Tamraz predicts that all Peninsula bowling alleys soon will follow suit. "When one bowling alley puts them in, it creates a competitive situation. They all have to put them in to compete," he said.

He noted that there are very few bowling alleys in the East Bay that don't have automatic scorers.

Bernie Knott, manager of 19th Avenue Bowl, commented, "I feel all bowling centers will eventually have these scorekeepers. They are a boon to people who do not know how to score and would like to bowl."

Because automatic scorers attract new bowlers, bowling alleys that have the machines usually keep several lanes reserved for open play at all times. Other bowling alleys often book up all their lanes with league teams.

To use an automatic scorer, a bowler inserts a waxed score sheet in a tray compartment of the machine and writes down the names of the people playing.

Each time a person bowls, he moves a lever at the "ID panel," located near the bowling ball return, to his assigned number. After he throws the ball, a scanner at the end of the alley counts the number of pins still standing and sends a signal to the scoring machine.

DIFFICULT TO BRIBE

Herm Tamraz tells the ID panel on the automatic scorer which bowler will bowl next.

A printer instantly types out the bowler's score. It also can figure a player's handicap.

Automatic scorers have another advantage: they score faster than most people can.

"The result is that people actually bowl more games with the automatic scorers than if they were keeping score themselves — especially new bowlers who are fascinated by the machine," Tamraz remarked.

Tamraz said automatic scorers are an outgrowth of the electronic games revolution. "An awful lot of engineers were out of work, so they started messing around with games."

"We're in the computer age," he added. "It's like pocket calculators — people like not having to think when they use these machines."

But automatic scorers do have one disadvantage: they break down from time to time.

Knott and Tamraz said the machines seldom malfunction, but when they do, they can create some spectacular errors.

Sea Bowl had one machine that kept printing strikes despite the number of pins a bowler felled.

The biggest problem, both managers agreed, is human error. They said many bowlers forget to tell the automatic scorers when a new person begins to bowl. The result is that one bowler gets a huge score while another gets a small one. Fortunately, that error can be corrected in mid-play.

Nevertheless, not all bowlers are enraptured with the new machines.

As Herm Tamraz lauded their virtues, a bowler shouted, "Hey, Herm! When can we go back to pin boys? I want somebody I can bribe."

SSF Girl Breaks Sex Barrier

South San Francisco's Robin Petrini became the first female to participate in an American Legion baseball game in California when she took the field Friday evening at Orange Park against the San Bruno Lions.

Petrini played shortstop against San Bruno, making one error in nine innings while going hitless at the plate.

"But she got up there and hit the ball hard every chance she got," commented South City coach Bob Brian.

Petrini had played for South City High's girls' softball team during the spring because she figured that would give her better exposure for a college scholarship.

The 15-year-old, who will be entering her junior year at SSF in the fall, had previously attained some notoriety as a pitcher for Southwood Junior High's baseball team.

Apparently, Petrini got the itch to play hardball once again and asked Brian if she could join the American Legion team. Brian gave the OK and Petrini's steady play at shortstop was one of the factors in South City's 6-3 win over the Lions.

Robin Petrini

Jim Dunn was the winner for SSF as he limited San Bruno to only five hits. South City outhit the Lions 9-5.

The San Bruno Legion team improved its record to 4-1 by taking a pair of 5-4 decisions over the weekend.

Joe McClelland was the winning pitcher for San Bruno in its victory over Pacifica. McClelland struck out six and walked two.

Ken Huffman won his second Legion game in three decisions in San Bruno's conquest over Redwood City. Huffman struck out 10 batters and has now fanned 46 in three games. Ralph Medrano had three hits and three RBI's for SB.

Jeff Kahler belted a three-run homer and Jerry Nastari added a double, triple and four RBI's as San Mateo ripped Daly City 10-3.

Bob Harrison got the win for San Mateo. Daly City's Ray Morton had two hits and three RBI's.

San Mateo also defeated Pacifica over the weekend 8-1. The loss was Pacifica's second in a row.

The San Bruno Lions rebounded from their loss to South City to defeat non-league foe San Francisco 8-7 Sunday. Amal DeSilva picked up the win for the Lions and had a three run triple in the third inning.

Braves Retain Semi-Pro Lead

The Burlingame Braves baseball club stayed atop the Peninsula Semi-Pro Association standings by defeating visiting University of San Francisco 4-1 Sunday at Washington Park.

Gary Shingleton struck out nine and walked six while allowing only one hit to pick up the win for the Braves. Shortstop Gary Corden led the Braves, attack with three hits and one run-batted-in.

Burlingame is still tied with New Pisa of San Francisco (a 6-1 winner over Palo Alto). Both teams are 3-0 and will meet this Sunday at 1 p.m. at Washington Park.

In another PSPA contest the San Mateo Loggers topped the Millbrae Pirates 14-11.

Walsh: Cards to Contend

New Stanford football coach Bill Walsh is out beating the drums.

For potential ticket-buyers, that is, not recruits. Recruits he already has. And if his prophecies turn out to be correct, he'll probably sell quite a few tickets.

"If we can keep our top 22 players healthy through the USC game, we have a chance of going all the way," Walsh told a recent meeting of the San Mateo Kiwanis Club.

"We're thin, due to graduation, but our first teams are on a par with any team in the country."

Walsh, who came to Stanford from the pro coaching ranks, wants to retain a pro-style attack, and in Guy Benjamin he has the quarterback who can run it.

Walsh said he had just recruited four high school sprinters for the backfield.

"Stanford will emphasize the passing game," he said, "and if Stanford can win seven games this year, then Benjamin will be an All-American."

Football Signups

The San Mateo Youth Football Association will hold signups for their 1977 season Saturday, June 25, at Lakeshore Park. All boys living within the boundaries of S.M.N.L.L. are eligible to sign up.

The association has two teams, the Chiefs for boys 10 to 12 and weighing between 70 and 110 pounds and the Knights, for boys 12 to 14 and weighing between 95 to 130 pounds. Both teams will be practicing at Hillsdale High School.

North County Sweep

By JOHN MURPHY
Correspondent

South San Francisco and San Bruno remain tied for first place in the North Peninsula Joe DiMaggio League baseball race after taking double-header sweeps Sunday over Eureka Federal Savings (San Mateo) and Lou's 66 (Pacifica), respectively.

South City edged Eureka 2-1 in the opener at San Mateo's Fitzgerald Field. SSF also took the nightcap 5-3 in 11 innings. San Bruno two-timed Lou's at San Bruno Park 5-4 and 7-4.

In another North Peninsula twin-bill host Millbrae swept Flying Goose (Daly City) 7-2 and 4-3 at Mills High.

SSF's Rich Bordi struck out eight, walked three and allowed only four hits in the opener. Steve Spediacci drove home the eventual winning run in the sixth with a sacrifice fly.

Eureka's Chris Joiner pitched effectively but was tagged for the loss. Ken Meyersieck led Eureka with a pair of hits and scored its only run on a double in the sixth by Gunther Lugo.

Eureka, which was missing ace righthander Paul Fox (who was in Oklahoma for a high school all-American game), was forced to throw shortstop Meyersieck in the second game. Meyersieck, not normally a pitcher, did a masterful impression of one until faltering in the late innings.

South City scored two in the sixth and one in the seventh to go ahead 3-1 but Eureka rallied to tie in the bottom of the seventh.

SSF won it in the 11th on a bases-loaded Texas League single by Jose Martinez which was followed by another run-scoring single by Frank Fano.

Randy Rico had four hits and an RBI and Martinez three hits and a pair of RBI's to pace South City. Meyersieck led Eureka's attack with a pair of hits and RBI's.

Steve Wilson relieved starter John Vincent in the ninth and picked up the win.

San Bruno only had six hits in two games but took advantage of walks, errors and the hot bat of Rick Fenili to capture its second and third consecutive wins over Lou's 66.

RBI singles by Greg Funk and Fenili in the first inning were all the hits San Bruno got in the first game but they managed a narrow victory behind the three-hit pitching of lefthander Jon Gibbons.

Gibbons was in continual difficulty as he struck out only one while walking nine. However, Lou's Gordon Shirley was also wild as he surrendered seven free passes while fanning 10 to absorb the loss.

Fenili also provided the punch for San Bruno in the second game as he had an RBI single during SB's four run first inning rally and then blasted a long three run homer to win it in the fifth.

Mike Dutil was credited with the win for San Bruno but was the beneficiary of a superb relief job by hard-throwing righthander T. J. Noonan who escaped a sticky situation in the sixth to pick up the save.

Flying Goose's Matt Scheffler was sailing along with a neat one-hit shutout until the seventh inning in the opener at Mills. However, Millbrae knocked Scheffler out of the box in the seventh as it scored seven times to win going away.

In the nightcap Millbrae bunched pairs of runs in the first and fifth to edge Flying Goose. Both teams had four hits but Millbrae committed one less error.

Kevin Cronin was the winner for Millbrae. He received relief help in the sixth from Vetter and A Brondolo.

Three single games will be played Wednesday evening in the DiMaggio League. SSF and Flying Goose square off at Marchbank Park (Daly City), Lou's 66 and Millbrae meet at Mills and San Bruno entertains San Mateo at San Bruno Park. All games begin at 5:45.

Docents Wanted To Guide Tours

The San Mateo County Parks and Recreation Division is accepting application for potential docents to lead discovery walks at the tidepools, the Baylands, the foothills and to lead animal tours at the Coyote Point Museum.

The existing corps of 80 docents is expanding in order to meet requests from schools and groups for tours.

Docents are asked to volunteer an average of 2½ days a month.

Docent trainees will be given in-depth training in the area in which they wish to participate, which will include recognition of major plants and animals of the area, basic ecology of the habitat and inerpreta-tive techniques that will be needed to lead a small group on a discovery walk.

Those interested in animals who would like to help in their preservation may join the animal docent training class which begins on June 28. Classes will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1:30-4:30 p.m. at the museum. High school students are welcome. There is a $5 materials fee.

Zoo Shows

Rufus, a bobcat, climbs trees, chases leaves and enjoys the forest floor. Reynard, a baby grey fox, will share the stage with Crazy Legs, the tarantula and Julia Squeezer, an eight-foot boa.

Biking Program Continues Throughout This Year

The Bikecentennial camping program, a success in 1976, will continue through 1977.

More than 11,000 bicyclists were recorded at the bicycle camps from April through September last year. The camps are located along a 1,000-mile coastal route between Mexico and Oregon.

The camps offer bicyclists water, toilet facilities and a place to lay a sleeping bag. They are open to nonmotorized travelers on a first-come, first-served basis, with a one-night fee of 50 cents per person and a maximum stay of two nights.

Bicylists are warned that much of the California coast route is not for the average recreational cyclist. Most of the route is for people who have had expe-rience cycling on narrow roads with fast-moving traffic and who are in good physical condition so they can take steep hills and sharp curves.

A 100-page tour guide published by CALTRANS includes such information as detailed route maps, typical-weather characteristics, grades, bicycle laws, and safety tips. This guide can be obtained by sending $1.06 to CALTRANS, 6002 Folsom Blvd., Sacramento 95819.

Commuter Protest Set Today

Angry commuters from the North County are planning to protest pending changes in local bus service at the Wednesday meeting of the San Mateo County Transit District Board of Directors.

Helen Governale of San Bruno said "Commuters for Adequate Service" is arranging car pools to the meeting, which will take place in the Board of Supervisors chambers in Redwood City. CAS members are commuters from San Bruno, Burlingame and Millbrae.

June Cradenhead of Daly City said she is trying to inform people in the Westlake area about the meeting, since service to that area will also be affected.

Some 100 commuters were on hand at a special meeting of SamTrans officials held June 8 in San Bruno.

They demanded to know why SamTrans is planning to disrupt existing bus lines when it takes over Greyhound's Peninsula operations on July 1.

Mrs. Governale, the wife of San Bruno Councilman Tony Governale, said she kept hearing rumors that bus service was going to be cut back.

"When my husband would call SamTrans, they'd say, Oh, no, Tony, you're going to get existing service.' All of a sudden, a map was published showing we would have one route access to BART, no expresses, and no daily 'M' bus — the one we call the 'milk route,' said Mrs. Governale.

Commuters complained about those changes as well as about increased transit times and fares at the June 8 meeting.

Mrs. Governale said the new drop-off points proposed in San Francisco would be less convenient for commuters and that SamTrans intends to eliminate commute books.

"Now commuters can buy commute books at 20 rides for $17.01. It's going to cost us 95 cents every time we take a SamTrans bus, then we'll have to take the San Francisco Muni after that — 25 cents more," she said.

Al Cianfichi, a SamTrans route scheduler, countered that SamTrans is changing routes to try to attract new bus commuters.

He argued that the San Francisco Board of Supervisors has restricted use of San Francisco streets by Peninsula buses.

At the end of the previous meeting, Cianfichi said there was a strong possibility that SamTrans would restore the express "Z" route.

"We don't believe them," said Mrs. Governale.

"If enough people get together, why can't we have the service we had in the past?" Mrs. Cradenhead added.

Brisbane Youth Dies

Outward Bound Tragedy Told

An 18-year-old Jefferson High School graduate, participating in an Outward Bound School project, drowned in Washington state Thursday.

The youth is Michael Simmonds, son of Corletta Simmonds, 301 Klamath St., Brisbane.

The youth had won a scholarship to the program, which helps young people develop confidence in themselves and an awareness of their environment, according to Vic Walsh, director of Outward Bound School.

Walsh said the drowning occurred on the first day of the school.

"The students had just taken their morning run, which is a preconditioning exercise, and were wading in a shallow pool area to cool off," Walsh said. "Michael apparently got too near the edge of the north fork of the Skykomish River near Glacier Peak and the current pulled him in."

Walsh said an instructor and another strong swimmer went in after the boy, but to no avail.

There were 36 students participating in the Oregon-based program this summer session, and there were 10 in Michael's group, plus two instructors.

"It's a tragic, unbelievable story," said Reno Taini, environmental education program teacher at Jefferson High School. "Michael was a very bright student, and it is just such a sad matter."

The boy's body has been recovered.

Colma Checking Petition

Colma City Atty. Robert Cornell is checking the legality of a lengthy petition calling for a citywide referendum on whether a proposed K-Mart complex should be built on El Camino Real.

The petition, containing 70 signatures, was filed by Colma resident Domenic Martini and Martini's attorney, James Paul Green of San Francisco.

Only 52 signatures, one quarter of Colma's 205 registered voters, are needed to bring the recent zoning change to a citywide vote.

City Clerk Frances Liston said the voter signatures will be verified in the San Mateo County Clerk's office after Cornell determines the legality of the petition.

Mrs. Liston said Colma's City Council has not yet set a special meeting to consider action on the petition. The council's next regular meeting will be July 13.

The petition asks that the K-Mart development, to be located at El Camino Real and Serramonte Boulevard at the present 10-acre Pacific Nurseries site, be considered by voters.

The development, a $3 million proposal for a store, offices and 600-car parking lot, was approved by the council recently, after about six months of consideration.

The petition asks that the zoning change from agricultural to commercial be considered, along with several findings the council adopted by resolution.

The findings dealt with council's contention that traffic could be handled adequately, that there would be no adverse effects of storm water runoff, that air quality would not be affected significantly and that public facilities would not be burdened.

The petition questions those findings.

Since the next general election is not until November, the petition's request that the matter not be considered until then brought up the question of its use as a delaying tactic.

The Michigan developer of the K-Mart, E. N. Maisel and Associates, has told city officials the company would consider seeking court action on such a petition. Green has objected to the development on the grounds that it would be intrusive and inappropriate to the stretch of El Camino Real dominated by Colma's cemetery businesses.

Tax Topic

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors is going to the people to discuss drasticaly escalated tax assessments.

Three meetings will be heard in the area: On June 23 at Skyline College; on July 7 at the San Mateo City Council Chambers; and on July 18 at the Board Chambers. All meetings begin at 7:30 p.m.

Record

The 23rd Annual KQED Auction brought in a record $705,806, topping last year's total of $655,736. A goal of $700,000 was set this year for the annual fund raising event for the San Francisco Bay Area public television station.

SSF OKs Oyster Pt. Marina Expansion

By TERRY DAVENPORT

The city attorney called it a possible moment of greatness for South San Francisco. Other people said it would spell disaster for the city.

After a stormy debate at its meeting last week the South San Francisco City Council voted 4-1 to authorize an agreement with the San Mateo County Harbor District and an agreement for consulting engineering services, clearing the way for an $8.4 million expansion of Oyster Point Marina

Douglas Dawkins, president of the San Mateo County Taxpayers Association, said the harbor district had not made any definite commitments to the project when he questioned commissioners at their meeting earlier last Wednesday.

Dawkins and members of other citizens' groups stalked out of the council meeting, vowing to acquire enough signatures to force a citywide referendum on the marina.

They will have 30 days to obtain the signatures of 10 per cent of the city's voters registered at the time of the last general election.

Opponents of the marina expressed fears that South San Francisco may be left picking up the tab if the harbor district defaults on the agreement. They pointed to Pillar Point Harbor as an example of the district's failure to follow through on development.

Councilman William Borba, who voted against the marina, said City Manager C. Walter Birkelo once had put a potential $10 million price tag on the project.

Birkelo insisted that he had never quoted such a figure and stressed that the city never will have to dip into general fund to pay for the marina.

According to the agreement, "Revenues from the operation of the marina facilities shall be the sole source of funding for the repayment of funds advanced by the Harbor District and no general funds of the city shall be required for repayment of said sums."

The harbor district would contribute $300,000 in the fiscal year 1977-78 toward the project. If the project costs more than the funds otherwise available, the district agrees to pay an additional $400,000.

Funds for the final phase of the project will be generated by the marina itself. But, the agreement stipulates that the harbor district will participate in the financing of this final phase "in an amount necessary to insure completion . . . in a timely manner and to the extent that marine revenues are unable to completely fund such cost."

Thus, the agreement appears not to involve any direct taxpayers funds.

The harbor district must approve the agreement before constructin may begin. Commissioners are expected to vote on it in two weeks.

The consulting engineering services contract went to Daniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendehall of Redwood City. The first two phases of the project, which would include enlarging the berthing area considerably and adding land-based facilities, will cost an estimated $7.4 million, with the third and last phase of $1 million to be paid entirely from marina revenues.

The agreement states, "Harbor District agrees to cooperate with city in the servicing of the projects by methods which avoid any reliance on general funds of the City."

Former South San Francisco Fire Chief John March questioned the council on what would happen if the harbor district were to dissolve.

City Atty. John Noonan said a "succession in interest" clause in the agreement directs the harbor district to place in trust for the marina the amounts agreed to prior to dissolution.

John Falsarella, president of the United Taxpayers Association, asked the council to delay action on the marina to give private investors time to submit proposals.

"If you go to private enterprise, you'll find out who's willing to put their money into this thing," Falsarella said.

Another citizen, Charles Brown, countered, "What if every golf course were owned by a private individual — how many people could afford to play golf? . . . In a case like this, we can get this marina through and it won't cost anybody anything except the people who use it."

When Borba questioned Birkelo on queries into private development of the marina, Birkelo said he had received only one specific proposal from a private developer: Western Water Ways, Inc., of Vallejo.

He said he had talked to another private contractor who would like to bid on the marina at a later stage. Birkelo explained that initial costs for building a leachate were too expensive.

"When the project gets underway then if you want to find out about private investors, you can entertain formal proposals," said Birkelo.

Falsarella retorted, "I feel Mr. Birkelo has downplayed private investors.

"I've talked to roughly 200 of my neighbors and taxpayers and they agree that if this doesn't cost anything to the taxpayers, to go ahead on the marina," Fred Humprey said.

Robert Wieger said he spoke for the silent majority in objecting to groups applying pressure and threatening lawsuits to stop growth in the city.

Teacher's Dismissal Is Upheld

A California administrative law panel has upheld Jefferson Union High School District's dismissal of a Pacifica teacher who allegedly provided alcohol to and gambled with three students.

Gary Domecq, who has been on suspension since the incidents allegedly occurred last October, will be fired immediately, according to Dr. Floyd Gonella, district superintendent.

Gonella received word Friday of the decision of the three-person state panel. The panel included a judge, a representative chosen by the district and a person of Domecq's choosing. Their decision was unanimous, according to Gonella.

The incident allegedly took place at Domecq's Pacifica residence at Shelter Cove and involved three Terra Nova High School students.

Tax Exam For Referees

A statewide examination to qualify additional candidates for possible future appointments as state inheritance tax referees will be given July 30 by the State Personnel Board.

The state now has 166 inheritance tax referees who, according to law, are appointed by the state controller to serve four-year terms. Appointments must be made from among those who have successfully completed the qualifying examination.

Copies of the official examination announcement and application forms may be obtained from any Employment Development Department Office, any State Personnel Board office or from the State Controller, Box 1019, Sacramento 95805.

Applications must be postmarked not later than midnight July 8, accompanied by the $25 non-refundable application fee fixed by the State Personnel Board.

Ownership of Bay Bottom May Be Decided

By GEORGE GOLDING

A pending settlement this summer may decide a question of land ownership in dispute since the first Spanish land grants in Northern California: who owns the bottom of San Francisco Bay?

The map of San Mateo County shows that its limits extend out to mid-bay.

City limit lines go out there, too.

Inside those limits are the mapped squares of property ownership and such titles as Lands of Leslie Salt, Lands of Ideal Cement, Lands of Crocker Estate.

The subject is submarine property over which fish now swim, but which is shallow enough so that it might be filled and used to create entire new cities.

A dozen years ago, there was just such a plan. It was called Pacific Air Commerce Center and spread from along the shoreline from San Francisco International Airport to Foster City.

The proposed developers were Ideal Cement, Crocker and David Rockefeller, who later dropped out when the project stalled.

What had been Pacific Air Commerce Center became Westbay Community Associates, a name that appears on one side of the lawsuit which soon may be settled.

On the other side is the State Lands Commission, which said 10 years ago that the state had erred in granting title to such properties. The commission will examine the terms of a proposed settlement at its June 30 meeting in Sacramento.

There is no question that the landowners have legal claim to the submerged properties. What is questioned is whether the property titles granted by authority of the state itself are truly valid.

In that sense, it is like the state suing itself, with a private citizen caught in the middle.

The outcome of such a suit could alter the plans of holders to title of thousands of parcels of land under the waters of San Francisco Bay.

Here in San Mateo County, the major title holder is Westbay Community Associates.

In plans for the Pacific Air Commerce Center published in 1966, the corporation said it controlled 600 acres on San Bruno Mountain, 2,765 acres in the Bay between San Francisco International Airport and the San Mateo-Hayward Bridge, and another 7,380 bay bottom acres south of that bridge to the Santa Clara County Line.

Had Pacific Air Commerce Center arrived on the scene 15 or 20 years earlier, it might well have been built before today's empahasis on environment and ecology.

Instead, that plan contributed to the formation of such groups as the Committee for Green Foothills, Save the Bay and the Sierra Club.

State legislators, who had been about to allow the quiet demise of a trial planning organization known as San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission, gave BCDC new life, and legal muscle to preserve the Bay.

Individuals who had protested the continual filling of shallow parts of the Bay, formed effective lobbies against further filling.

Plans for an offshore freeway looping up the Bay from Foster City to San Francisco were scuttled. People

Funds Grow; Crime Also

By DUANE SANDUL

Taxpayers are pumping more and more dollars into a criminal justice system which is experiencing more and more crime, with no end in sight, members of the Criminal Justice Council of San Mateo County were told .

A comprehensive study of crime between 1970 and 1975, with a projection of skyrocketing crime from now to 1980, was contained in a new report prepared for the State Criminal Justice Council as a requirement to receive $600,000 next year in federal money for criminal justice projects in San Mateo County.

Although the statistical period covers the first five years of this decade, the compilation in a single report for public consumption is new.

The 98-page document reports on general crime, juvenile crime and goals and objectives to curb unlawfulness. How to meet those goals is not addressed.

A sharp decline in auto thefts is responsible for statistically lowering San Mateo Couty's overall crime rate growth. Other crimes measured are homicide, robbery, aggravated assault, forcible rape, burglary and grand theft.

Major reported offenses in those crimes, including auto theft, climbed from 15,082 in 1970 to 17,941 in 1975.

The State Bureau of Criminal Statistics, which compiled the report based on monthly crime reports submitted by law enforcement agencies in San Mateo County, predicted a 31.4 per cent increase in crime from 1975 to 1980.

Sheriff John R. McDonald said that projections "in the past have been wrong."

Crimes against property, such as burglaries and grand theft, constitute nearly 90 per cent of all crime in San Mateo County.

A two-square-mile area of East Palo Alto has an overall crime rate three times greater than the countywide rate.

Burglary is the offense most committed in San Mateo County. A total of 9,777 burglaries were reported in 1975.

From 1970 to 1975, residential burglaries accounted for about 68 per cent of total burglaries reported, with the City of San Mateo reporting the greatest single-year number — 934 in 1975.

The study discounted what it termed a "general thought" that residential burglaries occur most frequently in areas where housing is the most dense.

There appears to be little, if any, correlation between housing density and residential burglary rates, it is stated.

Burglary rates for the first five years this decade were highest in Brisbane, Hillsborough, San Bruno, Half Moon Bay, Daly City, Pacifica and Atherton.

According to the report, arrests are increasing too. Law enforcement officials in San Mateo County made 6,879 felony arrests in 1975, compared with 5,202 in 1970.

The only area in which felony arrests decreased was in drug violations.

"I take exception to the chart," San Carlos City Manager C. R. "Bob" Allen said. He called it "sensitive," and said that several variables, constitute respective municipal expenditures.

clamored that the freeway would establish a targeted edge of future fill.

Proposals to carve away much of San Bruno Mountain as fill material for the offshore acres inspired hordes of complainers who said it would alter the area's climate.

Growth, an American lifestyle for 200 years, began to be a dirty word.

Paraders protested filling the Bay, while proponents of the plan said it would create more usable water area than it would destroy, would greatly increase available shoreline and beach area through creation of lagoons, and add bridle trails, marinas, and other attractions.

San Mateo County's Regional Planning Committee announced a 19-month study of shorefront plans.

Airline pilots protested development, and traffic specialists said it might jam access roads.

In early 1967, at the height of promotion and protests against the "City in the Bay," a 23-page grant deed conveying title of 4,000 acres of Ideal Cement lands to Westbay Community Associates was filed in San Mateo County Courthouse.

A month later, promoters were admitting there might already have been too many complaints.

Plans for houses and apartments in the shoreline areas were scrapped.

As citizen objections continued, official bodies also began an outpouring of condemnation.

One San Mateo County supervisor, who had ardently supported the development, suggested the state acquire title to 1,000 acres of the underwater land off San Mateo and Burlingame.

He said it would make a fitting memorial to the man who had created the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, the late state senator Eugene McAteer.

Within months, that commission had suggested that Westbay's plans for the San Mateo County portion of San Francisco Bay were not acceptable.

The Westbay plan effectively died, and California launched legal action to acquire title to the submerged property.

A lawsuit filed in Redwood City April 4, 1969, asked the court to determine ownership of several hundred acres off Coyote Point.

Charles O'Brien, then chief deputy attorney general, said it was the first of several such actions.

All, he said, would be aimed at retaining the Bay's existing shoreline, except for possible port additions.

"We are saying the state has title to these lands and that the lands are subject to a trust that does not permit the developments contemplated by Westbay," he said.

O'Brien's suit contended that the cities of San Mateo and Burlingame did not comply with terms of a 1933 law under which they received tidelands from the state.

That grant called for early development of the tidelands for commerce, navigation and fishery, he said.

"The word 'commerce' clearly meant port facilities, not industrial parks and shopping centers," O'Brien said.

He said the suit was filed against the Coyote Point property because it had been more thoroughly surveyed than other baybottom lands, and because few owners were involved.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Greg Taylor said the suit sought to determine the state's interest in the Bay.

He said the area questioned by that suit involved land which the state granted to San Mateo County as part of a Coyote Point Regional Park.

The suit, he said, was a quiet title action, asking the court to settle conflicting title claims and to declare the rights and duties of each of the parties.

Power Crisis Likely

If wearing both a belt and suspenders to hold one's trousers up is for a double contingency, then Pacific Gas and Electric Co. is down to about a single contingency in providing for its drought-stricken Northern and Central California customers.

A PG&E executive told a Downtown San Mateo Rotary Club luncheon gathering last week that the pants are a step closer to falling down.

Conservation and Energy Services Department manager John Cooper said that's because the drought has cut watershed runoff for hydroelectric power to 30 per cent of normal this year, following a 50 per cent of normal rate last year.

But because summer is the major electrical usage time, usually in the afternoon with air conditioners, farm pumps and normal business going on, "We still have to be ready when you all show up at once," Cooper said.

"We've attempted to minimize maintenance to keep our machinery operating as much as possible, 85 to 90 per cent of the time. These are high numbers," Cooper emphasized.

Nuclear power plants operating now would have alleviated this shortage, he went on.

"I don't think it's fair to criticize us for wanting our nuclear generating plant at Diablo Canyon (in San Luis Obispo County) to be on line," Cooper said, "because if we were burning wood chips it still would be needed."

PG&E is looking into getting an interim operating permit from the Federal Power Commission but prospects aren't bright and it won't be this summer, he continued.

With its contracts to buy, sell and "bank" electrical power with other utilities from the Northwest to Southern California, "We're in pretty good shape for awhile," Cooper said, but the bigger picture beyond PG&E's service area isn't so bright.

All areas suffering drought are affected the same way, Southern California perhaps more so because utilities there don't depend so much on hydroelectic power but don't have PG&E's Canadian gas sources, either, he said.

Worker Beaten, Robbed

A Southern Pacific employe was beaten, stabbed and robbed on his way to work Thursday night.

Kenneth Chilton got off a bus at Bayshore and Sunnydale Avenue on the Brisbane-San Francisco border at 11 p.m. and, while walking into the Southern Pacific yard to report for work, was jumped by four men, he told Brisbane police.

The assailants attacked him from behind, police report, stabbing him in the face. The attackers removed his wallet, wedding band and leather jacket.

Chilton suffered a fractured cheekbone, lacerations to the head, numerous contusions and had his front teeth knocked out. He was listed in satisfactory condition at Mary's Help Hospital, Daly City.

Brisbane police officer T. J. Guiney and the Southern Pacific police are investigating.

½ tespoon salt (add more after the chowder is heated, if needed)
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups grated Monterey jack cheese

Fry the quarter pound of bacon. Set aside for garnish. Pour off all but three tablesppons drippings. Add the one chopped onion, half cup each celery and green pepper, fourth cup chopped celery leaves and bay leaf. Saute about 8 minutes or until vegetables are tender crisp.

Mix in the two tablespoons flour. Add the 12 ounces undrained corn, half teaspoon salt, eighth teaspoon pepper and three cups milk. Cook, stirring, until soup comes to boil and is slightly thickened. Just before serving, stir in one cup cheese.

Serve in soup bowls. Top with remaining half cup cheese and crisp bacon.

Makes 1½ quarts (4 dinner servings)

Warning Issued on Mussels and Clams

The 1977 annual Mussel Quarantine began May 1 and will extend to Oct. 31.

This is the season when warm temperatures and sunlight are associated with a proliferation of the dinoflagellate organism Gonyaulax catanella that produces paralytic shellfish poisoning (PSP) toxin. Mussels and clams feeduon the organisms and toxin levels may occur that are sufficient to cause paralytic poisoning in persons eating these shellfish.

There is no danger of paralytic shellfish poisoning from abalone, shrimps and crabs at any time as thse creatures do not feed upon organism responsble for the presence of the toxin in mussels and claims.

The public also is warned clams should be cleaned and washed thoroughly before cooking. All dark parts of clams should be discarded because the poison present during May through October would be concentrated in the dark part. Only the white meat should be prepared for human consumption. In addition, clams should be taken only from areas free from sewage contamination.

Cal Poly Graduates

A number of Daly City students recently were graduated form California Polytechnic State University in San Luis Obispo.

They are Nancy Marie Palmieri, who majored in liberal studies; Louis Robert Pietrelli, environmental engineering; Serafin A. Baysa, industrial engineering; Steven Gerald Bucciarelli, electronic engineering; Teresa Ann Driscoll, animal science; and Charlene Gladys Sin Peng, home economics.

Help Wanted

The following agencies have requested volunteer assistance from the Volunteer Bureau/Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County, with offices in Burlingame, Daly City and Redwood City.

The local telephone number for area residents is 992-0957, an answering service. Residents may also call the main office in Burlingame at 32-0801, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Monday through Friday.

SERVICE LEAGUE OF SAN MATEO COUNTY — Warm, responsible and accepting volunteers who enjoy working with others are neded for family visitors. This responsibility would involve visiting each week with a family that has someone in jail. Complete training, direction and supervision are provided for any interested volunteers.

YWCA — Volunteers interested in working with children are needed to assist in supervising small groups of children in activities such as theatre arts, handcrafts, music, dance, games, sports and media. This will be a traveling camp and will be in the San Bruno area on Tuesdays for six weeks. Volunteers may assist one day a week or travel with the camp for Wednesday and Thursday.

MILLBRAE PARK AND RECREATION DEPARTMENT — Youth and adult volunteers are needed to assist recreation leaders on the playgrounds, with the day camps or assisting the specialists in special interest classes such as tiny tots, arts and crafts, ballet, gymnastics and sports.

RECYCLING CENTER — Volunteers who can give a few hours a week are needed to work at the center helping separate material into appropriate bins. The proceeds from the center are for the Family Homes For the Adult Retarded.

SAN BRUNO PARKS AND RECREATION DEPARTMENT — Volunteers are needed to assist with the new Special Needs program for handicapped children. The program runs on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday with various activities on each day.

YWCA Gets Some Help

Phones used to jangle incessantly as three overworked staff members tried to cope with the many demands made of the San Mateo County YWCA.

The phones have been getting answered more quickly since April, when the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) came up with funds for eight more staff positions.

The enlarged YWCA is taking on the world — or at least the county. They're planning a full range of programs for the summer.

In addition, the beefed-up staff also has been taken over San Mateo's Women's Center, which was about to close its doors due to the declining number of volunteer staffers.

Ms. Eddie Arbetman of the YWCA said that the Y now operates the Women's Center from 9 a.m. to noon weekdays. The center is located at 248 Ellsworth Ave., San Mateo.

Among the Women's Center activities in progress are a Monday night drop-in group led by a therapist, a home maintenance class, a session for rape victims, a job workshop and a class called "Affirmations," which deals with positive self-images.

In August, the Women's Center will have a workshop for women who are thinking about ending relationships.

As in previous years, the YWCA is offering many dance classes for all ages this summer. It also has added pre-school classes and a puppet-making course for children.

One unique program is a two-night collage-making class for children and their parents.

Other unusual courses include a body relaxation class and a Latin American cooking class.

Owner Scrubs Annex

A request for annexation of a quarter-acre parcel of Broadmoor area land to Daly City was withdrawn at a meeting of San Mateo County's Local Agency Formation Commission.

The applicant, Rodney Catalano of Portola Valley, told the commission that since his 10,900 square-foot parcel at the corner of 87th and Washington streets was rezoned by the county, he would not seek annexation.

Catalano's annexation request had raised the ire of Broadmoor residents, who said they feared that if it was granted, it would lead to further attempts to withdraw from the unincorporated area.

"I would rather be in Daly City but there was too much opposition," said Catalano.

Both Daly City City Manager David Rowe, who favored the annexation, and Broadmoor Police Commissioner Wayne Johnson spoke at the Wednesday meeting.

Following their comments to the commission and before the LAFCO members could vote, however, Catalano said he would withdraw the request.

Catalano said the county's action to rezone the property from R-1 to R-3 (multi-family) would permit him to construct the eight apartments he plans for the site.

Catalano said Daly City's parking restrictions are a bit more lenient than the county's, but otherwise the land use is similar.

The request was first heard some three months ago and had been delayed several times.

Catalano said the project is expected to cost $275,000.
